Doctors' Jury Decides:

Operate on Baby's Eye at Once

CHICAGO, May 9 (INS)—"Operate!"

A supreme court of medical science comprising ten of the city's outstanding specialists today returned that verdict in the pitiful case of baby Helaine Judith Colan.

The specialists, called upon to decide the fate of the child whose life is menaced by the dread glioma, tumor of the optic nerve, met behind closed doors, but it was learned they decided to resort to the surgeon's knife as the sole means of saving the infant's life.

It was decided to remove the left eye, which is already blinded by the tumor reaching out toward the brain. The result of this surgery will be watched to see if the cancerous growth is halted.

Hurley Backer And Al Spohrer In Jobs Quiz

William V. Ryan a district superintendent of claims for the Unemployment Compensation Commission, admitted today before the legislative investigating committee that he was a delegate to the pre-primary convenion in 1934 at which Governor Hurley was nominated.

Ryan, who lives in Franklin street, Cambridge, is superintendent of the Cambridge-Medford-Malden-Somerville-Woburn district.

Earlier "Al" Spohrer, former Braves catcher, became indignant while being questioned regarding his job with the commission. He denied angrily that his catching for the Braves had aided him in getting the job.

Ryan admitted that he sang at various Hurley campaign rallies.

June Drops Suit; Lefty's Cash Does It

NEW YORK, May 9 (INS)—June O'Dea Gomez withdrew her suit for separation against her husband, Vernon (Lefty) Gomez, today. A "lump sum cash settlement" was the reported inducement.

Announcement of the agreement was made by Melvin Klebatt, attorney for Mrs. Gomez, after a lengthy conference with Supreme Court Justice Levy.

The settlement halted the trial during which June testified Gomez, New York Yankee pitcher, beat her repeatedly, threatened to make her the victim of a "perfect murder," and once spoke of deliberately wrecking the automobile in which the pair was riding.

N. H. Fire Kills 3 From Melrose

ROCHESTER, N. H., May 9 (AP)—A family of three perished today as fire destroyed their home.

The victims were Arthur Harris, 57; his wife, Flora, 51, and their son, Arthur, Jr., 14, all natives of Melrose, Mass.

Neighbors made desperate rescue attempts, but were driven back by flames.

Arthur Lafontaine, one of the first to reach the burning dwelling, heard someone moaning, "I can't, I can't," but when he broke a window, intending to enter, flames shot out in his face.

A general alarm was sounded, but as no hydrant was near firemen were compelled to lay 1200 feet of hose.

The bodies of the three victims were found near their beds after the dwelling was leveled.

Crime Chiefs Cheat, Strong-Arm Foes

(Copyright, 1938, Boston Evening American)

A wide-open gambling town where racketeers are cheating and "strong-arming" each other—that's Boston.

Racketeers are fighting among themselves. They're threatening each other even with kidnaping of children.

Racketeers have been slugged. The victims' families have fled from the state for the protection of their children.

Nothing has been reported to police.

But such startling conditions are contained in information in possession of Attorney-General Paul A. Dever. Such evidence has led him to extend his "purge" of Revere crime conditions into Boston.

Dever's investigators have found that the trail from Revere led into Boston—a town split wide open by the greatest of rackets—gambling.

In his Revere probe, Attorney-General Dever is still not pulling his punches.

The Boston Evening American learned exclusively today that Dever's investigators will requestion certain Revere police officers. Investigators have discovered that statements made by these officers several months ago contradict new information in their possession.

It was learned the officers will be given "the chance to change their stories." The officers will be granted immunity up until the time Dever goes before the grand jury—if they "talk."

2 Shots Halt Chase in Malden

Through Malden's crowded business district, a patrolman chased a 39-year-old man for a quarter of a mile today, fired two shots in the air and finally trapped him in a parking lot.

The arrested man, Richard Hobasian, 39, who gave an address of an Adams square, Boston, rooming house, was booked on a charge of larceny of a suit of clothes.

He was alleged to have taken the suit off a rack in a Pleasant street, Malden, store

'Don't Wave The Cross', Says Unsigned Editorial

ROME, May 9 (Monday) (INS)—Premier Mussolini's own newspaper Popolo D'Italia, today retorted with a vigorous editorial to Pope Pius' recent condemnation of the display of Swastikas in Rome.

In bold-faced type the newspaper reprinted the Pontiff's speech of May 4 (in which he deplored the display of the swastikas instead of the crucifix) and declared in its editorial:

"It is very dangerous to speak of the cross of Christ and wave it like a weapon."

CITES EARLY HISTORY

The editorial recounted the history of the struggle for power between Philip II of Spain and Queen Catherine Medici, wherein restoration of a relief of St. Eugene by France to the Cathedral of Toledo played an important role. The editorial accused Catherine of opposing return of the religious relic to Spain in order to arouse French Catholics to destroy the Hugenots.

In concluding the editorial said:

"That's the way they did things in those days, and the Christian religion served as a pretext to the cupidity of devious diplomacy.

"The name of Christ and His cross was shouted by men of the church to pronounce, with that name and that symbol, condemnation and death.

"WITH EMPTY HANDS"

"It is necessary to speak clearly.

"We would say to the father of all us Catholics that 450 years have passed since that day, and that today it is very dangerous to speak of the cross of Christ and wave it about like a weapon and then find oneself in the company of usurers, Masons and Bolsheviks with empty hands, without a whip with which to chase the money changers from the temple of God, but alone, desperately alone, to pray-pray-pray."

This virtual paraphrasing of the pontiff's own words is expected to raise a new storm on the Catholic horizon that may have serious repercussions in the relations between the Vatican and Rome.

Italian official sources will, of course, maintain the editorial is merely the personal viewpoint of "Unitam," but its appearance in Popolo D'Italia, Mussolini's own newspaper, makes this attack upon the Pope flavor strongly of official inspiration.

The speech by Pope Pius to which Popolo D'Italia's article referred was made on May 4 at Castel Gandolfo. Addressing a group of newlyweds soon after Chancellor Hitler's arrival in Rome for his historic reunion with Mussolini, the aged pontiff referred to display of the Nazi swastika as follows:

"Pray, pray. Pray because sad things are happening here and far away from us. Among these things it is not considered out of place nor out of tempo to raise in Rome on the day of the Holy Cross the sign of another cross, a cross which is not the cross of Christ. This tells you all and tells you how necessary it is to pray, pray."

British Cabinet Shakeup Looms

LONDON, May 9 (AP)—A realignment of Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain's Conservative government appeared in prospect today.

Political commentators predicted cabinet streamlining to carry out the premier's policy of appeasement in Europe. Accession to the House of Lords by the colonial secretary, William George A. Ormsby-Gore, may bring the change soon.

Chasing Air Raiders

(International News Photograph Service)

DEFENDERS OF SKY—Squadron of swift U. S. Army pursuit planes routing imaginary enemy fliers over New York City as preliminary maneuver in this week's war games along northeastern coast cities. Planes of this type, as well as huge bombers, will appear in "action" over Boston. White buildings at bottom of photo comprise Cornell Medical Center.

Army War Birds Set To Repel N. E. 'Attack'

An "enemy fleet" of warships was steaming towards America across the Atlantic today, with Boston one of its objectives, while all up and down the Atlantic coast U. S. Army airplanes stood by to repel the "invaders."

The "enemy fleet"—purely imaginary—is due to "arrive off the Atlantic seaboard late this week. Massed at Westfield, Providence, R. I., New Haven, Ct., and other points is the biggest concentration of Army scout planes, pursuit and attack planes and bombers in U. S. history.

OBJECTIVE MYSTERY

Just where Boston, New York, or some other coastal point—the "enemy" will strike, remains a deep, dark secret. The planes' first job is to "find" him. Secondly, the planes' job is to so cripple him by bombing from the air as to render the "attack" on the Atlantic coast ineffectual.

The planes are expected to put out to sea, spreading fanwise to cover the entire coast area, not later than Thursday. There will the swift pursuit and observation ships.

IN STRIKING DISTANCE

When the "enemy" is "sighted," radio will call out the Army's "flying fortresses." These, convoyed by attack groups, will theoretically bomb the "enemy" ships.

Still later in the maneuvers, the assembled airplanes are to be divided into two groups. One group will represent defending forces. The other the "enemy," which, for purposes of the maneuvers, will be assumed to have come within striking distance, at least, of the American shore.

The maneuvers are expected to provide partial answers, at least, to problems of an effective guard from surprise by an invader and protection of such cities as Boston and New York from an attack by hostile ships.

Duce, Hitler End Talks, Axis Braced

ROME, May 9 (AP) — Germany's Fuehrer Hitler carried away from Rome today fresh assurances of Italian friendship, and high Fascists indicated this included a pledge by Premier Mussolini to let him have a free hand in Czechoslovakia, so far as Italy is concerned.

After six days of military display, princely entertainment and intensive talks with Premier Mussolini, the Fuehrer's program allowed him ten hours to taste the rich, medieval culture of Florence.

It appeared that the major result of the Hitler visit was a strengthening of the Rome-Berlin axis.

Hitler's gains were believed to be the pledge by Mussolini to give him freedom in Czechoslovakia, where resides a German minority population of 3,500,000 of which Hitler considers himself the ultimate protector; postponement of Mussolini's ideas about a peace pact (Italy, Germany, France, Britain), and an assurance that neither the new Italo-British accord nor conversations with France would affect solidity of the Rome-Berlin axis.

Mussolini was believed to have received from Hitler recognition of Italy's interest in central Europe and a promise the Italian port of Trieste would not lose all its Austrian traffic as a consequence of Austria's absorption by Germany.

Hitler, in addition, renounced any design of German population in the Italian South Tyrol, before the war a part of Austria.

With the Fuehrer's departure from Rome, the stage was called for the delayed Italian-French talks on a peace accord to go along with the Italo-British pact.

Homeward Bound Hitler in Florence

FLORENCE, Italy, May 9 (AP)—Adolf Hitler, homeward bound from his triumphal visit to Rome, arrived here this afternoon for a hasty survey of Florence's renaissance beauty.

Premier Mussolini, who preceded Hitler to Florence after bidding him farewell at Rome this morning, was on the station platform to welcome him here.

New 'Hicks Red War' on In Harvard

Harvard alumni who opposed appointment of Granville Hicks, fervid Communist, viewed with alarm today his new book, "I Love America," in which they say he makes Soviet Russia his "shrine" and challenges the established principles of the nation's oldest university.

In the book just off the press, Hicks states bluntly he has no "strong affection" for the college whose youths he will guide in a teacher's capacity, and adds that he considers its environs "depressing."

Granville Hicks

With his barbs at America's "capitalistic system," which he charges is holding back the country's progress, the young radical Intertwines deft jabs at the university from which he was graduated, about which "there is a great deal I do not care for."

Continuing his deprecation of Harvard, the author continues:

"To go back to Cambridge now and see the million of bricks that, placed end to end, would doubtless stretch an astronomical distance but, arranged in various architectural patterns, make up Harvard's new houses, is for me a little depressing," Hicks writes.

"So much of Harvard symbolizes what I do not like in America that it is hard for me to feel strong affection for it."

Hicks charges that Harvard has refused to renew the contracts of two organizers of the local teachers' union, Raymond Walsh and Alan Sweezy.

Curley Still After Graves

The aid of Dist.-Atty. William J. Foley in presenting perjury charges to the grand jury against Frederick H. Graves was sought today by former Gov. James M. Curley and his counsel, Wendell P. Murray.

Curley and the attorney called on the district attorney shortly before noon.

Graves was a principal witness in a suit by the city to recover $30,000 allegedly received illegally by Curley and Dr. Joseph Santosuosso out of settlement of the General Equipment suit against the city while Curley was mayor.

Last week a complaint against Graves was refused in municipal court.

MRS. LILLIAN GRISWOLD CLIFTON

Boston Wife Rushes to Join Clifton

HOLLYWOOD, May 9 — Mrs. Lillian Lowell Griswold Merrill Clifton, former Boston society woman, packed her bags today for another Atlantic crossing—for the same old reason.

She feels she should be at the side of her English husband, Talbot Clifton, who learned about poker from the man known as Lew.

"Keep your eyes on my husband," she telephoned police from Blackpool, England. "Put him in jail if you have to till I get there."

Clifton made headlines here when he lost $150,000 to Lew Brice.

"Watch out for my husband and that 'Ghost woman'," she said.

The "Ghost woman" is the lavender-haired, green-eyed Rev. Violet Greener, at whose home the poker-playing Britisher now is a guest.

The Rev. Violet, known as "the Ghost of Hollywood," has declared she is keeping Clifton away from cards and other temptations.

Captain Post replied that he would keep his "eye out," but couldn't see any way to hold Clifton in jail. He relayed the telephone message to Clifton, who commented:

"Oh, jolly! That's a bit of all right. Only last Friday I rang her up and she was much too ill to speak to me."

Gas Writes 'Finis' On This Mother's Day

WORCESTER, May 9—Mrs. Carolina Snair, 73, of Lockwood street, was found dead today in a gas-filled kitchen, leaving behind a note apparently written on Mother's Day. It read:

"This is to say that on this day I cannot live any longer. I suffered pains and tears when all of you were born to me. But now this is worse than all I suffered when you were born. I hope you will be happy when I am gone."

Police said she had been dead since yesterday. The sons, Raymond, who found the body, and Clifford, said they visited her twice a week in the 2-room apartment where she lived alone.

Helen Keler Cites Baby's Own Right In Plea for Life

By HELENKELLER

(Copyright, 1938, By Intnational News Service)

NEW YORK, May 9 (IN)—In imagination I stand by the cradle of Helaine Coln, all my feeling stirred to the depths—Tenderness for hr stricken, despair-blinded parents. Compassion for the little suffering life that pulls at the heart begging to live—defiant indignation against deaf, blind, limping sentimentality that would deny the babe a chance of growing up, if need be with a handicap, but overcoming it courageously.

Here is a fateful choice between an untimely death and a life which may be glorified with knowledge, vision more precious than sight.

Those who say that the blind should die are themselves in outer darkness. They do not rejoice in the happiness handicapped people snatch out of misfortune or the good they can accomplish and the new ideas they can impart.

SEES WORLD POORER

Would those pessimists wish gifted persons like Francois Huber to be put to death? If they had had their way, where would be the many secrets of nature that he revealed in apiarian science, hidden from the keenest eyes for ages?

If Beethoven's life had been cut short, because of deafness, he would not have wrought his most magnificent symphonies, and this world, pitifully needing spiritual elevation, would be the poorer without them.

It is assumed by most people with all their faculties that achievement of a high order depends upon physical fitness and a favorable environment. But the annals of progress show undeniably that much of humanity's finest work has been wrought by persons with a severe handicap.

HANDICAPS HELP

The root-factors in achievement, I believe, are will-power and personality. A normal body is not essential, in fact it may be a deterrent, paradoxical as that sounds. Handicaps are often favorable to mental concentration and patient effort.

The list of men and women who have lived when death seemed preferable and increased the beauty, knowledge and joy in the world is amazingly long.

Only those who have wrestled as Jacob with the angel until dawn can know the agony which must have gone into the works of Homer, Milton, Dr. Johnson, Pasteur, Henry Fawcett and Louis Braille.

I mention other men who have conquered different kinds of obstacles because all sense-handicaps are close, and often similar to blindness in the denials and restraints they entail.

GRIEVED AT PESSIMISM

It grieves me that such a wave of pessimism should sweep through the press while little Helaine lies smiling up at the nurses about her. Suppose she is saved for darkness. Her sweetness will remain, and if only her health permits, there will be joy for her too, undimmed, as mine is, by wistfulness for blessings she does not remember.

Again, if her life is only prolonged, the attempt will serve as a hope-inspiring precedent. Other parents with similar heart-breaking problems will draw courage from it, and there is no telling what wrecked young lives may be saved as by fire for real happiness and the ennoblement of men's souls.

I pray, and I know all the handicapped with natural hearts who hear of Helaine will unite with me, that she be spared to help open the eyes of ignorance, soften insensibility in those who have eyes and see not, and to gather blossoms of beauty whose roots are in the sunshine above all storms.

Four persons escaped from State mental hospitals and two youths from Shirley School for Boys over the week-end, State police reported today.

Troopers began a State-wide search for the missing persons among whom was also included William McNair, 53, a patient at the Veterans' Hospital in Northampton.

John Kalinoski, 48, the patient who fled from Medfield State Hospital, was described as "dangerous when drinking."

One of the four hospital inmates, Earl C. Bowman, 25, of Lexington street, Charlestown, was found by Monson State police and returned to Worcester State Hospital.

The other patients were Mary Bonney, 56, of Purchase street, New Bedford, from Grafton State Hospital, and Amelia Morris, 41, of Broadway, Rockport, from Danvers Hospital.

Escaped during the night from Shirley School were Ralph Wagner, 16, of Charlton street, and James Hickson, 17, of Paine street, both of Worcester.

Authorities said they were reported seen in a car in Lake avenue, Worcester.

Roosevelt Back, Sees His Chiefs

WASHINGTON, May 9—Tanned and invigorated by his week at sea, President Roosevelt returned to the Capital today to assume aggressive command of Congress and drive wage-hour and recovery legislation to enactment.

Mr. Roosevelt was greeted at the Union station by three members of the Cabinet, Postmaster-General Farley, Secretary of War Woodring and Secretary of Commerce Roper.

Within a few minutes after his arrival the President proceeded to the White House to prepare for a series of conferences with his aides and his congressional lieutenants.

There was no immediate word after the conference as to the Chief Executive's views toward the legislative program, but Speaker Bankhead hinted he had abandoned hope Congress could adjourn by June 1.

QUITS GUESSING

asked the prospects of adjournment, he replied:

"I've quit guessing. You will know when the gavel falls."

Rep. Rayburn of Texas, House Democratic leader, said, however, he thought adjournment may be reached by June 1.

Others at the conference were Vice-President Garner and Senator Barkley of Kentucky, Senate majority chieftain.

Rayburn said the whole congressional situation was gone into with the Chief Executive.

He said they told the President the conference report on the 1938 revenue bill probably would be taken up in the Senate later in the day and, if approved, could be passed by the House tomorrow.

RELIEF PROGRAM

The new relief-public works program, the subject of separate conferences in the White House in the afternoon by the President, Secretary Ickes, Relief Direct Hopkins, Budget Director Bell, and House appropriation committee leaders, will be brought up in the House tomorrow, Rayburn said.

The Texan, who also attended this second conference, said the President was told of the relief bill's provision for appropriating direct to the Federal agencies that will use them. The President expressed no opposition, he said.

Most legislators agreed that action on the wage-hour bill would present the greatest obstacle to June 1 adjournment.

On the honorary advisory council of the organization appear the names of United States Senators Wagner of New York, Glass of Virginia, Bilbo of Missouri, Walsh of Massachusetts.

Meanwhile, Representatives Dickstein and Sirovich of New York continued to develop plans to force a congressional inquiry into the activities of the German-American bund, a Nazi organization headed by Fritz Kuhn.

Six Win Tufts Scholarships

Six winners of $1200 scholarships for Tufts College were announced today by acting President George S. Miller of Tufts. Warren A. Hindenlang of Wilbraham Academy and Richard J. Coar of Kingston High School are the Massachusetts students to be honored.

Other winners are Albert W. Barney, Jr., St. Johnsbury Academy, Vt.; Sylvia R. Bedrick, Deering High School, Portland, Me.; Betty J. Lambert, Bassick High School, Bridgeport, Conn., and Robert H. Nagel, New Hampton School, New Hampton, N. H.

All six will enter Tufts and Jackson as freshmen in September.

Plan for Plebiscite

N. E. Jewry to Ballot On National Policy

Under direction of the American Jewish Congress, New England Jewry will meet next Sunday at 2:30 p. m. in Faneuil Hall in preparation for an extraordinary national convention at which a plebiscite will be held on important Jewish questions.

Next Sunday's gathering, to include representatives of all New England Jewish organizations, has been called for the purpose of registering every Jew and Jewess above the age of 18 who can vote for delegates to the national convention on June 25, 26 and 27.

HURLEY TO SPEAK

Among speakers at Faneuil Hall will be Governor Hurley, Mayor Tobin, Rev. C. Gordon Brownville, pastor of Tremont Temple, and Professor Horace Kallen of New York. Samuel Kalesky, president of the New England district of the American Jewish Congress, will preside.

The session of the American Jewish Congress in September will "review the situation of Jews throughout the world, the causes underlying anti-Semitism, and devise a program which will protect the equality rights of Jews, restore the rights of which Jews have already been deprived and help to productivise Jewish life."

PLAN PARLEY

Coincident with the September convention, a conference with leaders of European Jewish communities will take place for the first time on American soil, when the administrative committee of the World Jewish Congress, in which 32 countries are represented, convenes. Kalesky declared:

"Believing that the critical character of Jewish existence in Germany, Austria, Poland and Rumania is the result of a concentrated and co-ordinated plan of attack patterned after and subsidized by Hitlerism, that anti-Semitism is on the march and that the responsibility for the defense of Jewish rights rests upon the Jewish community of America, the American Congress is asking voters to decide whether there will be an end of division of Jewish life in America and one democratic agency to represent all Jewish groups."

SAMUEL KALESKY

Plebiscite

Queries Announced

Following are the questions to be submitted to voters in the American Jewish Congress plebiscite:

1—Shall the American Jewish Congress, established on a democratic basis in accordance with American ideals, be the representative agency of the Jews of America in defense of the equal rights of Jews?

2—Do you favor the reorganization of American Jewish communities on a democratic, representative basis; and the management of all community activities (including federations and welfare funds) on the same democratic, representative principle?

3—Do you favor the establishment of a free Jewish State in Palestine?

4—Do you favor the continuance of the boycott against Nazi Germany, including within the boycott the recently annexed province of Austria?

Soviets Execute Long Sought Rebel

MOSCOW, May 9 (AP)—Izvestia, the government newspaper, reported today that a leader of peasant revolts against the Soviet regime 17 years ago who since had figured as a villain in Russian fiction and drama finally had been caught, tried and executed.

He was P. I. Storozheff, henchman of the rebel chieftain Antonoff, who led revolts in Tamboff province, Central Russia, in 1920-21.

Army Documents Stolen, Soldier Held

SAN FRANCISCO, May 9 (INS)—Charged with stealing confidential army documents of such importance military officers refused to discuss them, Staff Sergeant Samuel B. Edgeman is being held incommunicado pending court martial, it was revealed today.

Investigation resulted in the discovery of some of the papers in quarters of another soldier, but the officers believed these had been "planted."

'Save Baby at All Cost'

Wasting not a second, the committee agreed unanimously that an operation must be performed at once.

Attendants at Garfield Park Community Hospital were notified by telephone to prepare the operating room.

Dr. Robert H. Good of the hospital staff was chosen to wield the knife.

During the momentous conference Doctor Good was heard to exclaim:

"After all, saving lives is our business. As long as there is some hope, we should operate."

It was planned to use radium therapy as soon as possible on the infant's right eye in the hope of partially saving the sight.

MOTHER PLEADS FOR BABY

Whether the surgeon's knife could bring relief in any event was a matter of conjecture.

The parents, as well as two rabbis and an attorney, were present at the conference. At one point the mother, Mrs. Estelle Colan, 23, cried out in an agonized voice:

"You've got to save her!"

Drawn and worn as a result of the suffering imposed upon her by the necessity of deciding whether to let nature take its tragic course or to order an operation that would doom Helaine to a life-time of blindness, Mrs. Colan clearly indicated she chose blindness to death for the child, saying:

"Whether she has one eye or no eyes, I want my baby. Let them operate if there is hope. Let them do anything, but save my baby."

As the mother spoke, the emergency council of ten medical specialists assembled to determine the fate of the child. The burden of deciding whether to operate was placed on their shoulders after the mother and the young father, Dr. Herman Colan, a dentist, found themselves unable to make the fateful decision.

Quincy Baby Died of Glioma

"We et nature take its course and we had no regrets whatsoever."

A Quincy father today revealed that his son was stricken with glioma 13 years ago—the same disease that afflicts Baby Helaine Colan in Chicago—and later died.

Walter E. Coady, a WPA worker, declared that his son, Walter, Jr., was stricken when 18 months old.

"We decided to leave everything in the hands of God" Coady said explaining that he was in no way advising the Chicago parents.

Coady said his boy fell in August, 1926, after his both eyes became affected. Coady's wife died last February.

Kelly Files Williams Writ

Attorney Samuel H. Green, law partner of Lieutenant-Governor Kelly, today delivered a writ to the sheriff's office for service as a preliminary move in Kelly's $50,000 suit for slander against Dr. David H. Williams, former commissioner of mental diseases.

The writ, it was stated, would be served at Dr. Williams' Jamaica Plain home by a deputy sheriff immediately.

Lieutenant-Governor Kelly said:

"The public will be amazed at the revelations in the trial of this suit."

He reiterated charges that Dr. Williams' story of having been "beaten up" was "a deliberate frameup."

WORTH A DIME

Operate, Says Hub Doctor

By R. JOSEPH E. STERNBERG

I have read the observations of the Chicago baby's case which were forwarded to me by Dr. William A. Fisher, Chicago eye and ear specialist and professor at the Chicago Eye and Ear, Nose and Throat College.

The Chicago baby's case is apparently the same as that which I had in 1915.

I advise an immediate operation.

There must be an operation to remove the eyeball and relieve the pressure from the brain tumor immediately. Otherwise death is inevitable.

FATAL DELAY

The patient I had later died because there had been a delay by his parents in granting permission for an operation.

There have been only three such cases in the past 25 years—the case I had, one occurring in the Far West and the third in Chicago.

It is a rare disease limited to childhood. It may be present at birth—as in the Chicago baby's case—or appear during infancy.

As a rule it is not noticed by the parent until the pupillary area in the eye becomes white. It may affect one or both eyes and reach to a fatal termination through extension of the growth to the brain.

My patient was brought to me July 6, 1914. She was a two-year-old girl of North End parents. She was one of three children.

On August 31, 1914, she was found to be suffering from glioma, a tumor on the brain which affects the optic nerve. The girl was a patient at Massachusetts Homeopathic Hospital which is now Massachusetts Memorial Hospital.

The parents of the girl were told that the growth was of a malignant nature and remova' of the eyeball advised.

This advice was refused by the parents. On January 1, 1915, the patient was taken sick with fever and appeared to be in a stupor and listless.

This continued until January 7—the parents becoming alarmed at their child's condition. The mother was told that in order to save the baby's life the eye should be removed at once.

DIFFICULT OPERATION

On January 8 the operation was performed with the parents' permission. I was assisted by Dr. William A. Taylor. The operation was extremely difficult.

Five days later the child was discharged. On February 24 the child became troubled again. Her eye swelled and there was a recurrence of the growth.

The mass in the eye became the size of a plum. The parents were told another operation was necessary. They refused the advice.

Immediate removal of the mass was advised March 20. The parents consented at the last minute and the operation was performed the next day.

On April 2 the girl was discharged from the hospital. On April 13 and 23 the child had convulsions indirectly caused by the delay. The baby died May 7.

(Dr. Sternberg's paper on the case was printed in the November, 1915 issue of The Journal of Ophthalmology, Otology and Laryngology.)

In 1915, Dr. Joseph E. Sternberg, Boylston street, eye and ear specialist, performed an operation on a North End child who was suffering from the same diseases as Baby Helaine Colan in Chicago.

Today, the Boston Evening American learned, exclusively, Dr. Sternberg received a wire from a Chicago physician requesting advice on the Colan case.

Dr. Sternberg, a graduate of Boston University medical school, gives his reply in the following exclusive article—based on his previous experience with what he says was a similar case.

Movie Mogul Perfects Race System

Win or Lose, He Wins With Ticket on Each Horse

(EDITOR'S NOTE—Following is another article in a series revealing the behind-the-scenes story of Hollywood's mad gambling fever. Stakes larger than the average man's yearly income are won—and lost—in a minute. The turn of a card, the toss of a dice, the stumble of a horse—and fabulous fortunes change hands in gay Filmdom. Read the articles and profit thereby.)

HOLLYWOOD, May 9 (Special to Boston American)—To the accompaniment of a mighty roar, a tiny little man whips frantically at the sleek black thoroughbred that is his mount. Hoofs drive hard into the turf and the sweat-flecked horse surges across the finish line, winner by a nose.

The jockey saws on the reins and his gaily colored silks flash brightly in the sun as he turns to canter back to a floral wreath.

From above the roar comes the frenzied shouting of a famous film producer-director. His cigar bobs flutteringly in the corner of his mouth.

"I had 'im!" he shouts, waving a sheaf of hundred-dollar tickets on the winning equine.

$50,000 ON RACE

Scores of top-flight, top-salaried screen personalities practice the same procedure.

But the really high stake players rarely bet themselves. They have betting agents who place sums as high as $50,000 on one race. The ever watchful eye of department of internal revenue agents is the cause of this.

A well-known studio head plays the horses the year round, wagering at three or four tracks during the day. His daily wagers on the horses often reach as high as $25,000.

Football is a favorite of this picture personality. But only because of the possibility of wagers. Last fall, he had bets running from $1000 to $5000 on five football games in one day. He wound up at a practical stand-off, winning three and losing two.

TENNIS SETS PLAY

Recently in the film colony tennis has leaped to the fore as a favorite competitive sport. One reason for the sport's excessive popularity is the opportunity it offers for betting. At an exclusive club devoted to tennis only, scores of producers, directors, writers and actors gather each Sunday.

Golf, too, has its share of high stake players.

A well-known producer recently got into an argument with a rich local broker over the respective merits of their games. The upshot of it was that the next day they were on the first tee playing for a thousand dollars a hole, with another bet of $10,000 on the medal score—or the low total score for the eighteen holes.

Surprising is the equanimity with which these high stake golfers take their winnings and losses. A shrug of the shoulders dismisses a putt, on which hinges thousands, that refuses to drop.

Hollywood's "high-rollers" play their games for sport's sake—and for the thrill of gambling.

Hollywood always calls a gambling bluff—in the grand manner. Watch for No. 4 in this series, "High Play in Hollywood," in the Boston Evening American.

Dever Told Details of Racket War

Boston, Attorney-General Dever has uncovered one that an ex-pugilist and racketeer has been working in Boston, Chelsea, Revere and Brookline, the details of which have been related exclusively by the Boston Evening American.

The one-time prizefighter thought he had a sure thing in the cheat another racket of operating to interfere in the hands of Attorney-General Dever.

He played horses and almost always won until the tracks got wise.

The wise system.

He would go over to a horse track outside New England. When he got the flash of the leading horse as the pack swept into the stretch he passed that horse to a quick better over the phone.

To avoid suspicion he passed other bets on the horses in races to follow.

When the [illegible] he would get [illegible] a race had started, there [illegible] who would [illegible] the time the winner [illegible] the line.

Ex-Wife Lauds Successor

The meeting of Mrs. Iris Geraldine Vaughan, Brookline socialite, and her successor as Mrs. Norman Vaughan was pleasant, she said, arriving here today with her son, Gerald, 3, aboard the liner, Lady Hawkins. Mrs. Vaughan said the present Mrs. Vaughan was "a charming woman."

When the [illegible] sports [illegible] explorer [illegible] Mrs. Iris Geraldine Vaughan Brookline socialite, found her successor "a charming woman," she said today on arriving in Boston aboard the liner Lady Hawkins.

The Canadian National liner brought 132 passengers, 108 for Boston, to end a 30-day cruise to Bermuda and the British West Indies.

In April of last year, the former Iris Bodey of Winthrop road, Brookline, was divorced from Norman Dane Vaughan, executive officer on the second Byrd Antarctic Expedition.

Last November he married Miss Rosamond Lockwood of Marlborough street, Back Bay, and the couple went to Bermuda on their honeymoon. A short time later the first Mrs. Vaughan and her son Gerald, now 3, also sailed for Bermuda.

While there they met and the first Mrs. Vaughan said:

"I think my successor is a charming woman."

[illegible] he did so "[illegible] for [illegible] was [illegible] for it.

"Paid in full" Attorney Warren Patten, for the legislative committee, asked.

Spectators snickered.

"That depends on what you mean by 'in full,'" Ryan replied.

He said he has been a professional entertainer since 1926 and [illegible] got [illegible] the state [illegible] of [illegible] Ankle Ex. [illegible] the [illegible] charge from entertaining [illegible], he expanded [illegible] needed work and "some of the boys at Legion headquarters" in Camerage told him he might get a job in the banking department.

The same "boys," he insisted, advised him to apply for a job in the Unemployment Compensation Commission. As long as he was applying, he testified, he thought he might as well apply for the best [illegible]. [illegible] application for the post of district superintendent.

Spohrer formed center for the Northern Legion club of which Judge Foss Eaton, now chairman of the commission, was president was the first witness.

He replied indignantly that his having played ball for eight years on Judge Foss's team had anything to do with his getting his job on Judge Foss's commission.

BUSINESS WITH STATE

There was a little matter, too, of "his own business" that Spohrer testified, he had from 1935 to 1937—the "Beacon Supply Company" at 1 Beacon street.

Associated with him, he testified were a Mr Balfe, now dead, and a Mr Fitch Rock.

"What sort of supply business was it?" inquired Representative Christian Herter, Jr., of Back Bay, a member of the legislative committee.

"Tar," said Spohrer. "Crushed stone. Highway supplies."

"Whom did you do business with?" persisted Herter.

"With the State of Massachusetts and with several cities and town," said Spohrer.

ANGER IN RETORT

"Were you," asked Representative Herter, suavely, "assured of a state contract before starting up this business of yours?"

Indignantly, Spohrer retorted:

"I don't think it's fair for you or anyone else to try to hook me up with any such things as your question suggests!"

"Well," said Herter, mildly, "why did you go out of business?"

By this time Spohrer was red. He answers:

"I think that's my own personal business!"

His first job with the Unemployment Compensation Commission, he testified was that of "supervisor of statistical machine operators." He held that position, at a salary of "about" $120 a month, from September to December 1937.

DENIES USING "PULL"

He admitted he's not civil service [illegible] state now operating [illegible] the Unemployment Compensation Commission will be subject to civil service regulations.

Easy Credit Reverses Bond Market

By HUGH E. BRADSHAW
Financial Editor

The government's easy credit program has definitely aided the bond market and in our opinion has been a chief long term reversal of the Treasury bonds once started the benefits of easy money and excess bank reserves would be further gained in all corporate issues.

Wage hour issues were a natural result of the reduction in reserve requirements insofar as Federal issues were concerned other developments were pressing relief rates and utilities rose. The former have been helped by the better trade, few points are passing and plans for the latter to own the transmission.

Also the fundamental force of easy money is the new stronger and become a turn in economic [illegible] seem to off, we [illegible] upswings in values to be [illegible] a passing affair.

Utilities Rally

Stock prices turned to the upside today under the leadership of late buying of utilities. Early losses were largely recovered and gains substituted by several important groups.

	Last Chge
American T & T	129¾—1¼
Am P & L $5 pfd.	28⅝+1⅝
Chrysler	46½—1
Consol Edison	25 —1
DuPont	101 — ¾
General Electric	37½— ⅝
General Motors	32
Kennecott	37½— ⅛
U S Steel	44 —1⅛
Westinghouse	77 +1

The mild seasonal gain in retail car sales in recent weeks led to the belief in some quarters that manufacturers would step up production. Instead it now appears that they plan further inventory curtailment and output figures will continue to make an unimpressive showing.

Another development to watch is the move to restore the early January auto show date. In the event it is successful business of parts makers as well as auto output figures for the late summer and fall will be under expectations.

BUSINESS CALENDAR: This week financial circles will watch for the General Motors sales report [illegible] Department of Commerce [illegible] import report for April. Rail tales and [illegible] weekly will [illegible] report on [illegible] U S Steel [illegible] and Department [illegible] for April [illegible] Friday when [illegible] expected by [illegible]

Because of the laggard action of industrial stocks many observers are advising traders to cash in on the profits accrue to their accounts. It is unusual for rails and utilities to inaugurate an important upturn and while it may prove the case this time cautious investors and buyers feel they will lose little by waiting for industrials to move up the few points needed to confirm such an upturn.

We consider such a view particularly as to the market or sections of it have lately displayed a tendency to run off on half cooked fashion on the slightest hint of better news. And such may be the afternoon of the enthusiast burst on the terms of utility peace and [illegible] purchases.

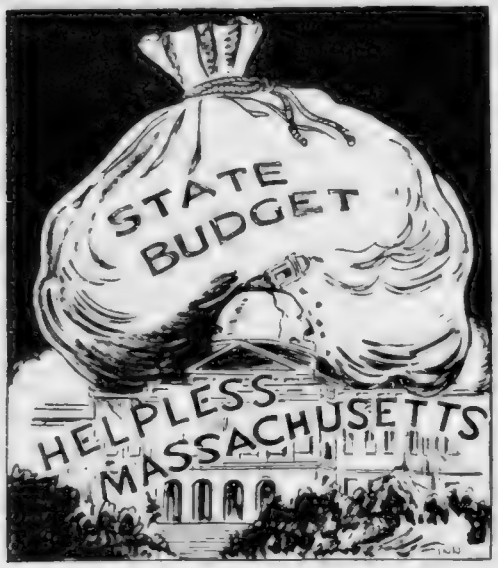
A Crushing Burden



The Editor Says: The artist's representation of the proposed State Budget as a monstrous burden that crushes even the bricks on Beacon Hill is hardly an exaggeration.

Thoroughly without justification, it is the BIGGEST and MOST EXTRAVAGANT drain on the public purse in the entire history of the Commonwealth.

At a time when thousands of our people are seeking employment it deliberately imposes penalties on private industry that are certain to result in MORE joblessness.

When property owners in all towns and cities are begging for relief from excessive taxes, it brazenly attempts to make them higher.

Although the Federal Government has threatened to penalize this state for diverting road funds to general expenses, it proposes to misuse MORE funds. Consequently, if "the bulge" becomes law, three million dollars that would come here from Washington for highway work WILL NOT COME.

Legislators responsible for this outrage have shown an amazing lack of consideration for the people.

Let us hope Governor Hurley does not share their callousness when the measure reaches him.

DEATH OR DARKNESS? Shall Baby Helene Cohan of Chicago die a natural death in two months? Or shall she undergo an operation which might save her life, but which would surely doom her to lifelong blindness?

These are the horrible questions that the child's parents ask themselves.

Naturally they waver on a decision. The death of a five-weeks-old daughter is terrible beyond comprehension. So, too, is the vision of one's own flesh and blood groping without sight through years that seem eternity.

WHAT WOULD YOU DO? Would you find consolation in the fact that many men and women, notably Helen Keller, have achieved distinction despite handicaps more serious than blindness?

Most of us avoid thinking about such questions, prefer to thank Heaven that we are spared such crosses. Yet it is well to consider them. They serve to lift us out of ruinous complacency, make us realize that after all we have many blessings for which to be grateful.

APPLE BLOSSOM TIME is here. In Nashoba Valley, premier Massachusetts fruit-growing belt, a million trees are in bloom. And thousands from every part of the State and nation drive to see of the beauty, the equal of which is seen in no other part of the world.

Here indeed is a sight worth seeing. Nobody who can afford the time and expense should miss it. Florida's gardens, California's fragrant flowers and Washington's cherry trees are beautiful. But they cannot compare with this.

Families especially should visit Westford and adjacent towns. Five minutes there are a treat and an education.

The Political Parade

By GEORGE ROTHWELL BROWN

WASHINGTON, May 9.

THE strategic processes of Mr. Roosevelt's mind are too subtle for the average politician. It follows naturally, therefore, that they are very much too subtle for the average business man.

For example the present economic crisis coincides with one of the most acute emergencies in American history.

It has long been apparent to the other half of Congress—most of whom however are tongue-tied for political reasons—and has lately become apparent even to the inner White House coterie, that an understanding between government and business was essential to the cessation of existing fear and financial and industrial recovery.

TO BRING about such a rapprochement the cooperation of two factors was essential, Mr. Roosevelt and business.

Some 2000 outstanding business men of the nation has been in Washington attending the annual session of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States.

The week in which the business men of the country assembled at their capital was the week which Mr. Roosevelt selected for being in the West Indies on a fishing trip. Vacation it, please!

IN VIEW of the urgency of better understanding between business and the Presidency, it would seem that Mr. Roosevelt at any sacrifice would have remained in Washington during the period so many business leaders of the nation were to be in town.

There is no foundation, the Chamber of Commerce members that Mr. Roosevelt deliberately left the city to avoid direct contact with them.

But what other reason than deliberation can explain why so favorable an opportunity for an exchange of views between the President and business was ignored?

This week would have done just as well for the fishing trip. As a matter of fact, from the point of view of the Congressional situation last week was a bad time for the President to be away.

Mr. Roosevelt was invited to address the Chamber some time ago. He declined, on the grounds of his absence from the city.

Five Will Get You Ten

THERE seems to be numerous kinds of agitation for a national sweepstakes. The heaviest argument we have against it is that we never win anything.

The Irish Sweepstakes supports a hospital. It built the hospital. It not only built and supports it, but it also fills it with fellows who have fractured their wishbones hoping they would win something.

Why couldn't we have a charitable lottery to support exhausted Republicans, spavined rhumba dancers and ex-human beings? Have 12 sweepstakes a year and make one new millionaire a month.

The Government could split the take down the back like a breakfast roll. Then it could plaster a tax of 50 per cent on the winner and an amusement tax on the losers. It could collect everything, like a fellow shooting with decoy ducks.

We'll fall for that National Sweepstakes just as long as we can dig up the initiation fee. The difference between a sucker, a financial wizard and a New Dealer is that the sucker must finance himself.

What of Today, Tomorrow?

Take Any Decent Job, Father Maxwell Says

What is the outlook for the thousands of new graduates soon to depart our colleges and join the army of job-hunters?

The Boston Evening American put this question to the Rev. Joseph R. N. Maxwell, S. J., dean of Boston College.

Today, this learned Jesuit, who has shepherded countless youths through their college years, seen them mature and then has watched them step out into the world, gives his answer.

By PAUL WHELTON

Boston Evening American Staff Writer

(Copyrighted, 1938, by the Boston Evening American)

This depression—or call it recession—has been good for college students.

Although employment conditions are bad, the graduates of 1938 are better off than those of a few years ago. There will be jobs for most of them.

These seeming variances are analyzed today by the Rev. Joseph R. N. Maxwell, S. J., dean of Boston College, not from theory but out of long contact with an army of youth who have come to him for aid in planning their future lives.

"The outlook for graduates soon to leave our colleges is very serious," he said.

But it is well for you, for most of them, if they are alert to the possibilities of new trends in jobs and new professions.

"I do not mean to imply that the unemployment situation has been exaggerated, on the contrary I believe it is worse this year than even when I was in college. And when I was in college we were a year ago and they were bad times.

Father Maxwell

"I THINK HOWEVER THAT THE AVERAGE COLLEGE MAN HAS AN ADVANTAGE OVER THE AVERAGE HIGH SCHOOL GRADUATE IN THE COMPETITION AND THAT THEIR APPOSITION AVAILABLE FOR COLLEGE MEN TODAY THAT DID NOT EXIST IN FORMER TIMES."

The most striking example of this, Father Maxwell said he believes, is in the field of sociology.

"We have always taught sociology," he explained, "but there was little opportunity for making a living in social work up to recently. Now we have a great many students who are taking a career out of it.

"There is a demand for intelligent well-trained young men in the field.

"Training for careers in research is offered by our chemistry and physics laboratories. Young men are going into chemical and industrial laboratories.

"THEN THERE IS THE GROWING FIELD OF AVIATION. EACH YEAR A NUMBER OF OUR GRADUATES GO INTO THE FLYING CORPS OF THE ARMY OR NAVY, OR ENTER THE CADET SCHOOL FOR MARINES AT QUANTICO.

"After two years of service, if they do not wish to remain in it, they have a splendid training for jobs in commercial flying.

"We place many students with business firms and large corporations. Then, of course, an increasing number are going on to graduate work or entering law or medical schools.

As to the familiar assertion that the professions generally are overcrowded, Father Maxwell said:

"Perhaps there are too many doctors and lawyers. But young men who have gone into the professions, even within the past few years, have done well in many cases.

"THERE IS ALWAYS A PLACE FOR THE ABLE AND WELL-TRAINED MAN, and I would not discourage a boy from entering his chosen field merely because of competition.

"Never have college students been so concerned with political and economic questions as they are today. Young men are far more aware of the government and its functions than they were when I was in college. And within recent years for the first time they are asking about politics as a career.

"THERE IS A GREAT NEED FOR HONEST YOUNG MEN WITH IDEALS IN GOVERNMENT. PRACTICAL, FORCEFUL and THOUGHTFUL men, not crack-brained theorists. I wish MORE of our young law students would devote themselves to this field. And I believe that within a short time there will be positions, both with government and industry, in the field of labor relations.

Figures of the placement bureau at the college show that 90 PER CENT of the class of 1937 are employed. Over 10 per cent, added to further study, the figure revealed.

"I believe, where it is financially possible, that the student is wise to continue studies during difficult times. If he has finished school, he should take any decent job that offers and should realize that HE MUST START AT THE BOTTOM.

"The attitude of students toward life has changed for the better, decidedly. We hear of cynicism, of a rebellious spirit, but by observation in that this depression has been good for the students.

THEY HAVE LEARNED TO THINK. They are aware of the situation they will face upon leaving school.

Most colleges maintain a placement bureau, as we do. We try to find positions for our graduates and we give them advice all through their school years as to the best courses for their choice of vocation.

"BUT THE MOST IMPORTANT THING WE DO IS TEACH THEM TO THINK. Boston College has no electives until the third year. The boys get a solid cultural background before they begin on courses that apply to their future work.

"I BELIEVE THE CURSE OF AMERICAN EDUCATION IS TOO MUCH SCATTERED, UNRELATED INFORMATION.

"The most significant thing about our students' reaction to the depression is the way in which the Catholic philosophy has stood by him.

"WE HAVE NEVER HAD STUDENT SUICIDE. WE HAVE NO 'ISMS.' Our young men believe that life is a preparation for eternity; that suffering is a necessary, even a glorious thing.

"The class of 1938 is thoughtful, BUT NOT FEARFUL, of the future!"

Tomorrow, the Boston Evening American will present another in the series of interviews with New England college officials.

Girl About Town -:- by Ann Marsters

IN THE MORNING MAIL: Quite a few protests over our paragraph concerning the origin of "O. K.," which, we said, came out of the Netherlands from the word, Korrect. So here's one of the protests:

"Your version of the origin of O. K. published a few days ago seems a bit far fetched. I have always thought that our common expression O. K. came from the Greek.

"It seems that in the old days Greek scholars were accustomed to write the two words 'omikron' and 'kappa' between everything as an aid in their pupils' papers. In time this was shortened to the first symbol letters.

"Hence an approval mark or person, O. K. meaning 'all right.'"

COMPLAINT DEPARTMENT: "Why," writes Mrs. C. Conway of Cambridge, "don't all our largest movie houses manage somehow to stop people coming in after the show?"

"It is very annoying to leave it [illegible] and proves that many of the patrons are entirely lacking in common courtesy.

"My suggestion is that the house ushers put a side at every performance, requesting the removal of hats."

It's a good suggestion, but why not let the lady gently on the shoulder and say: "Will you please take off your hat." Surely it never fails to produce results.

BOSTON is to have its own little theatre of a serious and ambitious scale. Its name is the New England Repertory Theater," at 30 Huntington avenue, Boston, and the producer is Edwin Burr Pettis.

On May 13 and 14, it opens with George Bernard Shaw's "Androcles and the Lion" and Pirandello's "Aria Da Capo."

It will be a year-round theater with professional full-time players. And it aims to be a self-supporting basis—not dependent on financial contributions or guarantees from sponsors.

We wish it the best of luck.

WILL WE SEE YOU? The Maybird is evening.

It's going to be a marvelous party at Lester of the Night Sports Final Editor of the Boston American—and all the big shots attend. Jaw will be there representing about every brand of sport, from baseball to golf.

The Governor and the Mayor will be present, too. And as for entertainment? Why, we see Ina Ray Hutton, Step Fords and Lew Wasserman.

For this my mother wrapped me warm
And called me home against the storm
And coaxed my tardy wishes to quit,
And gave me sourdough in my bed
And clipped my hair and tucked me neatly
And tucked me in my bed at eight,
And watched me as I sat and ate,
That I might grow to womanhood
To hear a whistle and drop my wash
And break my heart to flatterers.

—DOROTHY PARKER.

SHOPPING HINTS: Heres something that should startle the town: Lester Gabrielle, the chain, has reduced [illegible] wherever else for $149.95. But at the [illegible] leg jeans $49.95. Thus you save a cool $100.00. The prices are 1948 American-Bosch Corp. made at wave oscillator, with 12-RCA tubes. And remember there's only 100 of them at that amazing price. A very nice buy at Jordan's in tufted [illegible] set, at $1.79 or only $2.29. Let's certify [illegible] either style or design.

A Real Hero -:- by Hugh S. Johnson

NEW YORK CITY: Here and now [illegible] was buried with insufficient honors one who was among the best beloved of my Virginia friends—Colonel Julien Gaujot, one of the most unique of cavalrymen.

Born in the West Virginia territory of the Hatfield-McCoy feud he had killed his man in his teens in fair combat and more than once.

Gen Johnson

Continuous [illegible] via the Boxer Insurrection where his brother, for great gallantry, received the Congressional Medal of Honor, Gaujot had an obsession. "He wears it for a watch fob the civilian. I get to get me one of them things for my own self if I live [illegible] eventually, duly did.

Treacherous massacres of white troops sent General Hell-roaring Jake Smith to Samar with orders to "Hell the Inside." A false "Black Pope" and a fake [illegible] archy were responsible for these massacres and incredible tortures of white soldiers.

Gaujot caught red-handed and quite properly hanged 11 of them. Sometimes curious kept to cross themselves when his name was mentioned but Governor William H. Taft was horrified. Hell-roaring Jake together with Gaujot were consigned to the official dog house.

IN EXILE he held down a simple station. His fantasies became Army legends. He served chief per of the barge of state [illegible] Petrow

IN MADERO'S REVOLUTION he went to Douglas, Arizona. The revolutionists looked the Diaz town across the border. Their first target to kill people in Douglas. Gaujot mounted his beloved horse, Old Dick, and took [illegible] the head of the revolutionary fire. His [illegible] trumpeter, Pedroza, who was for years my own orderly, said: "Captain they're firing at us."

Gaujot rode on. Pedroza said: "Captain they'll kill Dick." Gaujot [illegible]:

"Take him back." Then above that [illegible] of a man walked to the gun muzzles began to practice Spanish profanity than which there is none whicher and of which he was a master.

He bullyragged the Maderists into [illegible] fabric. Then under equally hot fire he worked them to the Diaz trenches and [illegible] got them into crossing the border to surrender.

DOUGLAS WAS SAVED but the Mexican Government was furious. Taft was President and he remembered the 11 fake [illegible] at Samar. But General Leonard Wood [illegible] a court martial or a Medal of Honor. The Medal was never better deserved and no [illegible] grateful will contribute." So Gaujot got [illegible] of these things for my own self."

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—It is not supposed to be known but an extremely important diplomatic deal with France is in the making when Ambassador Bill Bullitt gets back to Paris.

It is a plan to use the vast network of the French Marquesa Islands in the South Pacific as American commercial airplane oases between Australia, South America and the United States.

William Bullitt

Whether this country will offer to buy some of the islands outright (possibly for cancellation of debts) or whether a leasing proposition will be worked out with the French is not known. The negotiation still is in a nebulous state.

All the State Department actually wants is the right to establish regular landing bases in the French islands, although the purchase of some of them might be feasible.

NEW DEAL PRIMARIES. While House generalissimos are not shouting it from the housetops, but they have drastically revised their campaign strategy as a result of Senator Claude Pepper's smashing victory.

Before the Florida primary some of the New Dealers were worried and in favor of conducting a passive campaign. Now, however, we can expect them to take off the wraps and jump into the primaries.

First candidates slated for New Deal boosts are:

1—State Senator Henry Hess of Oregon, who is running against Governor Charles Martin. A high Administration official is about to give Martin a resounding oratorical spanking.

2—Representative Otha Wearin of Iowa, 39-year-old New Dealer, who is after the conservative scalp of Senator Guy Gillette. Secretary Wallace, who has a severe case of "Presidentitis," has been trying to boost Gillette, but Roosevelt's support for Wearin will be made very clear to Corn State voters before the June 6 primary.

Other New Deal favorites scheduled for public endorsements in one form or another are:

Senator Alben Barkley, for whom the President has promised to make a speech in Paducah, Ky., the Senate leader's home town.

Governor Olin Johnston of South Carolina, who is running against the ineffable Senator "Cotton Ed" Smith.

Senator Fred Brown of New Hampshire, who has said very little in his six years in office, but has a 100 per cent Roosevelt voting record.

Senator Magill of Kansas, who will have no trouble being renominated but faces the toughest kind of battle to be re-elected.

Helen Rowland Says:

MARRIAGE is more of a gamble today than it ever was before. But then women are more confirmed gamblers than ever before. That's why so many women who have lost or discarded one husband are cheerfully willing to risk Fate for a new deal.

When an attractive woman with a good income re-marries, people are always astonished. BUT WHY? Even when a husband is not an absolute financial necessity he is usually always an asset.

In the first place, the more money a woman has, the more she needs a husband to protect her against duressky salesmen, [illegible]-tailors, promoters, grafters, professional borrowers and her own foolish impulses.

Social every woman wants a home. And a home seems sort of [illegible] without a man around it.

Moreover, every woman needs a husband as a [illegible]. A single woman has to [illegible] [illegible] reasons in order to escape from dull [illegible] [illegible] women. [illegible] bachelors and bores. Be [illegible] six feet of [illegible] with there is no answer.

Again, a [illegible] husband is an effective [illegible]. Nothing else looks [illegible] as well as the head of a [illegible] [illegible] after you have [illegible] the [illegible] [illegible] yourself. [illegible] WOMAN LOOKS more effective [illegible] a man around [illegible] [illegible] them and [illegible] them.

Besides, every [illegible] needs a man around [illegible] [illegible] utility [illegible] [illegible] which it sticks. Art of Biscuit Making

FROM MARTHA LEE'S MONDAY MORNING BROADCAST OVER WMEX 11:30 A. M.

Biscuits are the quickest of quick breads. They require a short time to make and if the simple rules are followed the results will be excellent.

The proportion of liquid and baking powder to flour are as follows:

2 cups flour
4 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
2 to 4 tablespoons shortening
2 ¼ to ¾ cup milk

To make biscuits, the flour is sifted before measuring. It is then combined with the baking powder and salt by sifting the baking powder, salt and flour together three times.

The shortening is then cut into the flour mixture with a pastry blender or two knives. The liquid is then added all at once. For soft dough use the greater amount of liquid. For stiff dough use the smaller amount of liquid. The dough is then turned out on a lightly floured board and kneaded lightly for a few seconds. Then it is rolled or patted out to the thickness desired and cut with a floured biscuit cutter. Bake in a hot oven (450 degrees F.) for 12 to 15 minutes.

Play in Match-Mates

By ANNICE BRINK

THIS IS making fashion history. Perfectly color-assembled match mates out of which you can work quite the most delectable costumes your doting public has ever seen are the brain children of a certain Boston shop. And in the prodigy class. Cool sugar-tanning and wearing "sirspun" rayon of fine shantung texture is made up in hats, pockets, blouses, shirts, bags, gloves and even shoes of contrasting colors. Consider the possibilities: two styles of each in three color combinations. Tulip red and cloud pink. Forget-me-not with beige, and sea foam with cruise blue are the pairs. Above you see illustrated one complete ensemble down to darling sandal shoes with no heels at all. Dress can like this. Blouse cut off the hips. Full round. Blue denim jacket under fifty dollars. Two pairs of shoes, five. Buy by the [illegible]. And have fun.

FOR SHOPPING information on these color-co-ordinated summer fashions that are very budget indeed, phone Annice Brink, Fashion Editor, LIBerty 4000, weekdays until five, or write her at the Boston American.

Realty Man Held in $60,000 Gem Theft

Charged with larceny of some $60,000 in jewelry, Charles Colton, 38, Munroe Hotel Roxbury was taken into custody on a warrant by detectives at South Station today.

Colton was named by Mrs. Margaret W. Richards, Detroit woman visiting here, who charged he intended to pawn the jewelry in January to raise money for a real estate deal.

FRIEND OF HERS

Colton, who weighs 250 pounds, continued to insist:

"I know nothing about her jewelry—absolutely nothing! This whole thing is a surprise to me."

He was asked whether he didn't know he's the man Mrs. Richards reported as having legal proceedings started against Mrs. Richards.

"I don't know anything about it," Colton said

Mrs. Richards, on the day she reported her jewelry missing, gave her address as Detroit, Mich. Colton, Suffolk, and Police officials said they were under the impression she is related to royalty.

Small Loan Jump Reported for '37

The annual report of the Bureau of Loan Agencies to State Bank Commissioner William P. Hustabid, Jr., today disclosed that a total of 283,450 loans of $300 and less amounting to $43,778,144.97 had been made during 1937.

The report stated there was an increase over 1936 of 45,722 in the number of loans. The average loan last year was $154.39, an increase of $7.29 per loan over 1936.

NERVES

FREE Millions of people are suffering from "nerves" and don't know what to do about it. Scientists have recently proven that many conditions of nervousness such as nervspixia, neuritis, insomnia, fatigue, loss of appetite, constant worry, constipation and many muscular aches and pains are due to lack of certain vital food substances, which when taken by the sufferer, give amazing relief. Neural-Aid, an inexpensive, DRUGLESS preparation, contains these all-important food elements. Sufferers who clip this ad and bring it in can obtain a FREE SAMPLE of Neural-Aid and full information.

THOMAS BLACK Accident Life

Austen Lake Says:

Lefty Grove Offers Wise Word to Dizzy Dean

ON THE THEORY THAT THE BEST of Life's little achievements are often born of adversity, there is a golden thought in this column for Dizzy Dean. For if the crippled Cub can capitalize on his misfortune as Lefty Grove did on his four years ago, he, too, may experience the kind of pitching revival that ancient Lefty is enjoying now in his physical gloaming. For Lefty's renaissance tracks back to the springtime arm-ache he suffered in 1934.

AUSTEN LAKE

It was March 6 of that year when Lefty suddenly ceased firing in the Sarasota, Fla., pitching pits and stalked to the clubhouse with his left arm cradled in the hollow of his right. History tells us how every muscle-witch and bone wizard in the U. S. A. took ganders at the afflicted part without finding cause or cure. They yanked out his molars, clipped out his tonsils and X-rayed his entrails. They treated him for dandruff and pronated feet. They looked into his ears and under his arm pits. But to this day Lefty doesn't know why he had the twinge, except that it gradually passed from a big ache to a little ache and disappeared.

The important thing—are you listenin' Diz?—was that Grove, after an initial rest, kept oiling his elbow with little lobs and tiny studio tosses, flinging the summer hours away in the bull pen and experimenting with all the pitching arts for which formerly he had neither time nor inclination.

Lefty Grove, the [illegible] pitcher who had stood on the mound and blood has been spurting from the batters as though from a bear gun. But the first frosts were settling into his fur and he used his painful period for a study of scouring an aged curve acquiring the knack of "feeling the string" on snow pellets and gutter balls to throw "hot shots" as two pitchers term those offerings between strike heaves when it is the batter with their feet pawed.

The Corduroy Elder

SO, INSTEAD OF BEING AN ANTIQUATED hay-shaker at 38 Lefty has already won four straight in this infant season and has yet to feel his first horse collar. From a pitching freak of the Feller type who was blessed with crude pick-and-shovel power and the ability to turn a baseball into a white blurr, Lefty used calamity to turn artist. He admits he is twice the skilled workman today that he was at his crest.

Of course, Grove has never burned out his physical filament in midnight prowlings, dosed himself with boisterous waters, or performed any of the skin-the-cat foolishness usual among ball players. He kept strict farm-hand hours, going to bed with the pea-fowl and rising with the dew, a habit that he calls "coon hunter's insomnia." And instead of growing ripples of lard about his middle during the offseason, he mooches around his Maryland crags with a rifle in the hollow of an arm. He eats hominy grits, corn pone and the simple, rustic fare of his father's. So that now at 38, an age when most athletes grow miseries in their thighs and live on pills from blue bottles, Lefty still retains his capital investment in health and lives on the dividends.

There is an increasing spray of silver in his hair and the parenthetical grooves beside his jaws are deeper. But he is working every fourth day, mowing 'em down with regularity, and, if the Red Sox come up with their boots full of fish, it will be Lefty's pennant more than any individual member.

From Pain to Pennants

LEFTY'S GLORIOUS GLOAMING IS NOT the only precedent when Dean might study. Back in 1917 Bullet Joe Bush caught a misery in his arm and spent his season-long convalescence to invent the fork-ball, which is a pitch notched between the index and middle finger and released with an over hand flip. Properly thrown the ball behaves like the obsolete spit-ball, swooping and dodging with every air current and ducking under the bat like a shy child evading a stranger's pat. Bush's discovery made the Red Sox pennant winners next year.

Also, when Al Simmons' line drive fractured Walter Johnson's ankle in 1923, he used his period of recovery to mature a curve ball which later made a perfect foil for his whizz bang speed. And next year, when Washington won its first flag, Walter had the batters rocking back on their heels and fishing for the breeze on his fast ones.

The passing years have mellowed old pickle-puss, though Lefty is still gnawed sometimes by his internal mouse and is still addicted to dark velvet moods. But from the earlier day when he gave out interviews in monosyllabic pop-corn sputters and scandalized umpires with sulphuric cusses, he is docile to the newspaper pests and lets the lawyers misread his strikes with a patient smirk. And where he used to stand on the infield grass and murder erring teammates with his eyes, now he merely bends his neck in meditation and studies his toes. He has learned what Dean must learn in his own turn—to conserve spiritual fuel for moments when he needs it most. For the test of any great athlete, man or beast, is the way he rises to the emergency, so that Lefty's magic foams up best when the going is worst. just as Lawrin, the russet race horse in Saturday's derby, began to churn its rump faster as he felt Dauber's breath grow hotter on his flank.

Schmeling Is in N. Y. for Fight

NEW YORK, May 9 (AP)—Max Schmeling arrived on the Bremen today, said he was confident he would whip Joe Louis for the heavyweight championship in the Yankee Stadium June 22 and then would defend the title in the United States in September.

Schmeling, appearing to be in perfect condition, said he weighed 196 pounds and probably would scale 194 for Louis. He said the three tune-up matches in which he had engaged had put him in fine shape. His trainer, Max Machon, predicted Max would dispose of Louis more easily and more quickly than he did in 1936.

an offensive opportunist. A batter who'd go up to the plate displaying a determination to hit.

One reliable hitter would have broken Lou Fette victories over the Cardinals and Pirates and would have converted Jim Turner's defeat at the hands of the Cubs into a win.

Stengel was far from satisfied with an even break with the Cardinals, who have all the appearances of some of the Mound City clubs the late Miller Huggins managed years ago.

Just as soon as the Bees lost that 10-inning game to the Cubs, Stengel rushed back to the hotel and didn't appear in the lobby for a couple of hours.

"I hope some of these boys take a good look at this town, for it's the last time they'll see it at the expense of the Bees," he said after contacting Bob Quinn.

The Bees went through another one of those "missed opportunity" afternoons yesterday. But to give the devil his due, they were actually robbed of a victory by Lee "Jeep" Handley, who made five of the most startling plays any third baseman ever came up with and almost single-handed turned a Pittsburgh defeat into a sensational win.

Trade rumors are in the air. Keep your ears to the ground.

CELEBRITIES PAY HOMAGE TO 'FINAL'

By MURRAY KRAMER

Autograph seekers, attention!

The greatest array of names ever assembled under any one roof in Boston's history will gather at the Club Mayfair tonight for the Boston Evening American's third annual Night Sports Final party.

In baseball the Boston American is proud to present as its guests Tom Yawkey, Bob Quinn, Eddie Collins, John Quinn, Joe Cronin, Oscar Vitt, Bob Feller, Jimmy Foxx, Rollie Hemsley, Joe Vosmik, Moose Solters, Doc Cramer, Ken Keltner, Lefty Grove, Moe Berg, Earl Averill, Ben Chapman and Pinky Higgins.

Other sports will be very well represented with such notables as Tom Thorp, Art Ross, Lou Smith, Russ Murray, Judge James Dooley, Charles Connors, Jim Egan, C. F. Adams, Jim Linnehan, Pat Hanle, Yeslie Pawson, Bilis Ames, Denn Shute, Doc Palumbo, Jack Sharkey, Lou Brouillard, Sammy Fuller, Al McCoy, George Martin, Ralph Zanelli and Rip Valenti.

Moving into the realm of public life, the guests will be Governor Charles F. Hurley, Mayor Maurice J. Tobin, Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr., Congressman John McCormack, Lt. Governor Francis J. Kelley, Attorney General Paul A. Dever, District Attorney William J. Foley and State Auditor Thomas A. Buckley.

These personages will be introduced by Jack Conway, Ann Marsters, Austen Lake and Joe Cashman.

The public is welcome. No admission tickets are necessary. Regular Mayfair prices will prevail.

Drop in! It's going to be the night of nights.

The Princess Baba of Sarawak arrived in Boston today and accepted an invitation to be present at the dinner.

Bob Gregory, wrestler husband of the princess, will also attend the dinner.

Wilson Goes For Tobacco

By DAVE WILSON
(Selections for fast track)
BEST BET—TOBACCO, 8TH RACE

Tobacco, a sterling third to Bit of Sorrow and Red Raider in her only start of the meeting, looks the part of a blazing cinch as placed in the nightcap at Suffolk Downs tomorrow.

Tobacco will be opposed by four indifferent rivals, three of which she easily drubbed in the above race.

Sun Asia, the other starter, failed to raise a respectable gallop in two local outings.

Jimmy Lynch is the jockey.

FIRST RACE
Brogan, Long Wave, Deep Rock

BROGAN is dropping down. Fifth to Time Interval in his New England debut, Bill Dwyer's pet has little ... fear from this group of $12500-$1000 platers. LONG WAVE was off poorly in the race won by Miss Hollywood, but closed like a wild horse to be beaten only a nose for the place by DEEP ROCK.

SECOND RACE
Miss Leannah, Richstrike, Secret Chatter

MISS LEANNAH is a standout. Necked out by Idolatry in her most recent start, the Cohort filly needs only to duplicate that sterling performance to insure brackets. RICHSTRIKE, a brisk worker, and SECRET CHATTER loom as the only dangers.

THIRD RACE
Miney Myerson, Night Raven, Chance Queen

FOURTH RACE
Whooper, Notice Me, Vote Boy

WHOOPER is at tops. But for a poor ride, Harvey Campbell's charge would have beaten Crowning Glory and Elylee in his most recent essay. NOTICE ME, well-rested since successful campaign in Florida, shapes up slightly better than our old friend VOTE BOY.

FIFTH RACE
Bob C, Wise Counsel, Panoramscope

BOB C was never in finer fettle. His recent second to Upsilon was a beauty, and it needs only to be repeated to head this field. WISE COUNSEL could handle PANORASCOPE last winter in Florida competition.

SIXTH RACE
Vitamin B, Brass Monkey, L'Etoile

VITAMIN B merits another chance. When nosed out by Brass Monkey the other day he was the victim of a very weak ride. BRASS MONKEY will have an apprentice aboard and undoubtedly will miss the capable services of L. Turner.

SEVENTH RACE
Makeit, Blind Brook, Lugano

MAKEIT is nicely placed. On her recent third to Founder and Garden Message, she can hardly toss off the verdict. BLIND BROOK figures to improve enough to turn tables on LUGANO. A short head separated them in their last meeting.

EIGHTH RACE
Tobacco, Lady Tichner, Sun Asia

LADY TICHNER is TOBACCO'S most dangerous rival. This Medway Stable colorbearer appeared to be shy on racing condition in her last race, when beaten off by the top one. SUN ASIA flashed improvement in Saturday's race.

Mayor Opens Park League Campaign

The feature of tonight's Park League openers at Neponset, between Dick Casey's champion club and St. Augustine's, will draw one of the largest crowds in the history of sandlot baseball, with Mayor Tobin billed to make his debut as president of the organization by tossing out the first ball.

Also on hand to lend a hand in the flag raising festivities will be Joe Cronin and Eddie Collins of the Sox, Bob Quinn of the Bees and Oscar Vitt of the Cleveland club.

Casey will send James Brown or Charley Bird to the mound, with Bub Walsh behind the bat; an infield of Sheehan, Sullivan, Horgan and Huxtable, with Sarno, A. Bloom and Frank Catarius in the field.

The two new entries from Dorchester, St. Ambrose, managed by Tom Earley, and piloted on the field by the veteran Terry Donovan; and the Wilson Club, sponsored by the popular City Councilor, will go into action at Roberts field, the site of the famous old Dunbar avenue grounds.

The Holy Name A. A., a graduate from the Catholic League, will be host at Fallon field to its sectional rival, the Town club; the Maddens and Mass Knitting will tangle at the Fens stadium; the new Agnew club meets the McDonough team at C. J. Lee grounds, South Boston, and the Brighton Civics travel to the Smith Pond Reservation in Hyde Park to encounter Bud Tominey and the Tribune club.

'Thumb Sore,' Feller Explains

now it's in perfect shape and I'm not worrying about it. They say if you hurt an arm once, and it heals over, then you'll be all right.

"And I sure do think that I'm a better pitcher now than I ever was."

That, no doubt, is precisely what a lot of you have been wondering about. Was Bob Feller just a comet that flashed across the baseball sky? Or is he a great pitcher, with the sure promise of a great career?

Feller is a modest young man—but he's inclined to think that the latter is true, even though he doesn't say so in quite those words.

He has a cockiness which is not the boastful kind, and a self-confidence born of sound commonsense. (He's good-looking, too—in case you're interested—with fine blue eyes and a deep dimple in his chin.)

About his own pitching he says:

"There's every reason why I should be better than when I first joined the Indians. Then, the only thing I had was a fast ball. I've had to develop better control, a good curve ball, and an easy change of pace."

Perhaps we don't need to remind you, that when Feller began his career, everyone was saying he had the fastest ball ever seen since the day of the immortal Walter Johnson.

"When I'm feeling all right," said Feller with his Iowa drawl, "I'll match my speed with any pitcher living today."

There is one particular thing which gives Feller added confidence in the results of this season. It is the fact that Rollie Hemsley is catching.

"If you don't have confidence in the catcher," he said, "it makes a pitcher's job a lot more difficult. But Rollie is exceptionally smart; he knows what ball to call, and it's very seldom that we disagree."

Young Mr. Feller is a determined young man, and he has (we suspect) a bit of a stubborn streak in him. And his face took on a definitely determined expression when he said:

"There's one thing I'm NOT going to do—and that's let them work me too hard. A pitcher's career lasts only as long as his arm lasts—and I hope to have a good long career."

P. S. Bob Feller is to be a guest of honor at the Boston American Night Final dinner tonight at the Club Mayfair.

White-Colored 'Royal' at Arena

Something new in the way of a battle royal will be seen at the Arena Wednesday night when a team of two white wrestlers attempts to defeat a team of two colored wrestlers.

G. W. Lee and Buster Jones, the colored light heavyweights, will meet Bull Berini of Italy and Dynamite Dunn, Newfoundland. In the usual battle royal, it is every man for himself, and the last one wins the fray. This new battle royal will be team vs. team, something probably never seen in this city before.

Ouimet Recounts Greatest Golf Shot

This is the second of a series of stories on "greatest shots" and "thrilling experiences" by New England's outstanding amateur and professional golfers.

By FRANCIS OUIMET

National Open Champion '13; National Amateur Champion '14, '31; Walker Cup Captain '34, '36, '38

AS TOLD TO WALTER KILEY

Thrills have been many since that memorable day, a quarter century ago, when I won the National Open from Vardon and Ray at Brookline.

One of the biggest, however, is reserved for today, the eve of my sailing for England as captain of the United States Walker Cup team. I'm 42 now, and it's a source of great satisfaction to feel that I'm still in on the fun.

In my recently published book, "A Game of Golf," I recounted many of my fondest experiences. All are still fresh in memory.

BEST SHOT IN 1913

There was that early caddy day when lovable Samuel Carr of The Country Club augmented my bag of two sticks with a leather faced driver, a midiron, lofter and putter. I was in seventh heaven.

A ball out of bounds, on my second shot on the fifth hole in that memorable playoff with Vardon and Ray, stands out as my greatest shot, strangely enough.

It was pouring that morning and as I swung, the club turned in my hand, sailing deep into the woods.

If it hadn't gone out of bounds, I would have been in an unplayable lie. As it was I got a five on the hole. Ray had a five and Vardon a four.

I always felt that the saving of those strokes right there was the turning point in my first big championship victory.

66 AT WINCHESTER

Odd things are always cropping up in this game of golf. I played a couple of practice rounds over the Wellesley course two days before the 1913 Open at Brookline. It was then a comparatively short and simple nine-hole layout.

I carded 88 in each round, 22 strokes higher than the 66 I had earlier established there as a course record. Who, seeing me at Wellesley, would have wagered a thin shilling that I'd win the National title a few days later?

Freddie Corcoran likes to claim the 66 I scored at Winchester in 1919 is the only perfect round of golf on record. It seems I was never off the fairways, never in the rough or a trap and never three putted a green.

It was a thrill, too, to lift the National Amateur championship for the second time at Ekwanok in 1931, in Vermont, 18 years to the day when I first won it in 1913 at Brookline.

AT ST. ANDREWS

It's still a thrill when someone pronounces my name correctly. It is sounded "Wee-Mel.". I've been called everything from Omit, Kweemit to Omelet.

St. Andrews, scene of the Walker Cup matches in England, is the golfer's paradise. I'll never forget my match there with Roger Wethered in 1923 when I was one-down coming to the 36th tee.

Roger was 20 feet past the pin with a great second. I was 18 feet short. His downhill putt stopped on the lip of the cup and half blocked my approach. But I squeezed past, the ball breaking just nicely and the birdie three gave me a tie, one well received.

TOMORROW—HAROLD "JUG" McSPADEN.

Kuhel Out! Not only out stealing but out of action for two weeks is Joe Kuhel as a result of this slide. At left, the Chisox first sacker is tagged out at second by Crosetti. In center he is writhing in pain on the ground as mates rush to his assistance. At right, he is being carried off field. Slide took place in sixth inning of Sabbath game with Yanks. X-rays showed no fracture, but the sprain was severe. Yanks won, 7-3.

'My Thumb Was Sore, That's All'

'I'm a Better Pitcher Now Than I Ever Was'--Feller

BOB FELLER GIVES ANN MARSTERS reason for his defeat by Red Sox. "My thumb was sore, and I had a pain in my head," explained the boy wonder from Van Meter, Iowa. But Feller is most optimistic about the future.

Ann Marsters Interviews Cleveland Ace

By ANN MARSTERS

We have a few things to tell you about one Robert Feller, who hails from the tiny town of Van Meter, Iowa.

He's a baseball pitcher, employed by the Cleveland Indians. What's more, he's one of the greatest wonders of the baseball world.

All right—maybe you did see him lose yesterday's game with the Red Sox, but what does that mean? It means, mostly, that he had a blister on his thumb and a pain in his head, and he was, definitely, not himself.

So let's consider Bob Feller when he is himself.

To begin with, the record runs like this: He became a major league pitcher when he was only 17—straight from the Van Meter high school.

He joined the Indians late in the summer of 1936, and made the most astonishing pitching debut in all major league history.

For instance, shortly after his debut, he set a new American League strike-out record by fanning 17 Philadelphia Athletics.

But now we'll let Bob himself tell you about that injured arm, which made the season of 1937 go from bad to worse, as far he, Feller, was concerned.

"My elbow got slipped out of joint," he said. "It happened on the 24th of April, last year, and I wasn't any good until July. But

Dauber Threat In Preakness Saturday

BALTIMORE, May 9 (AP) — Eastern racing fans looked today to Dauber, the hope of Maryland, for balm in Saturday's $70,000 Preakness at historic Pimlico.

Dauber, chestnut colt owned by William C. duPont, Jr., was second in the Derby, his great stretch drive in a vain attempt to overtake Lawrin from far behind tagging him at once as one of the brightest Preakness prospects.

There'll be no Lawrin-Dauber duel in the Preakness—the Derby winner was not even nominated—but Dauber will face powerful contention throughout the mile and three-sixteenths grind, one-sixteenth shorter than the Derby distance.

Can't Wait, owned by Myron Selznick, finished third in the Derby and will be out to better that standing in the rich Preakness, which offers the year's fattest purse to three-year-olds.

The Derby's disappointments, Fighting Fox, Bull Lea and Menow, also will strive to recoup in the Preakness some of the prestige lost at Churchill Downs.
